A neat, clean, fresh, sweet, cheerful, well-arranged house exerts a moral influwell-arranged house exerts a moral mul-ence over its immates, and makes the members of a family peaceful and consid-erate of each other's feelings and happi-ness. The connection is obvious between the state of mind thus produced, and re-spect for others, and for those higher duties and obligations which no laws can enforce. On the contrary, a fifthy, squalid, noxious dwelling, in which none of the decencies are observed, contributes to make its inhabitants selfish, sensual, and regardless of the feelings of others; and the constant indulgence of such passions renders them reckless and brutal.
